Dear Peter,

I have viewed the trees and would accept the reduction of the Bay trees.

The hard reduction to the Hawthorn however would likely stress the tree beyond its ability to recover and would suggest a light reduction or indeed none at all, save perhaps a light crown lift over the footpath/garden to provide a 2.5m clearance between the ground and first branches.

The English Oak crown reduction to leave a height of 12ft will destroy the natural growth pattern and appearance that this tree currently provides and I would object to all unnecessary work. Reducing specific parts of the crown to create a gap between the property by 1.5m and clearing the highway of large branch growth which would likely damage/obscure the free passage vehicles and pedestrians is reasonable and should be granted consent.

Yours sincerely

Ian Brewster
