Whilst the elevations of the proposed doors appear to reflect that of others within the building, it is unfortunate that they are flush faced blank doors with applied moulding beads, as opposed to being of traditional construction. The effect is a door of limited aesthetic appearance.

I have to state that I do not have the knowledge of how to deal with fire prevention etc. and these comments are made on that basis. It would be preferred if doors of traditional construction/appearance could be used along with Intumescent Products or similar. However, if the proposed doors provide the required safety benefits, they could be supported.
