Dear Mr Humphries,

The application documents have been reviewed and it is not clear whether Listed Building Consent is required for the change of use since there do not appear to be any identified internal alterations on the floor plans submitted. The only change referred to is the use of the rooms which are labelled differently. If it is only a change of use you are seeking approval for then Listed Building Consent would not be required and the application should be withdrawn. However if internal alterations (in the form of an alternative layout plan, new/removal of partitioning/provision of flues/ changes to doorways) do form part of the proposal then the alterations should be clearly marked on a submitted floor plan and detail provided.

Please can you confirm how you wish the application to proceed and provide additional details within the next 7 days if necessary.

Regards

Anita Gardner
