Dear Zac

I am so sorry for the delay in answering your question. I have been trying to contact my colleague who will be working alongside me on the works. I am sure that will be fine. I appreciate the reasoning of the question, as I am aware of many beautiful properties, all grade II around me that have been ruined by clumsy removal of old pointing with the careless use of machinery. It is when the grinder is used on the verticals that does the damage, the blade cutting into the brickwork above and below.

I will not be using any machinery for this work if that is your worry. I love this house, having lived here over sixty years, and would hate to make any mistakes. It's a beautiful house.

Hope this puts your mind at ease.

Kind regards

Josse Davis
