Hello Simon

No, we still need the condition to be formally discharged. I was asked by the archaeology firm for an informal indication of whether or not it would be likely to be satisfactory -- which I'm usually happy to do because it should save time after proper submission. Is that OK?

Best wishes,

James

Hi James,

I gather that this has been discussed with you prior to submission to us. Can you advise whether this negates the need for a pre-commencement archaeology condition.

Kind Regards

Simon.

Dear Simon,

Further to our correspondence below, please find attached our proposed Written Scheme of Investigations.

Our consultant has been liaising directly with the archaeological advisor so we believe this covers all the requirements.

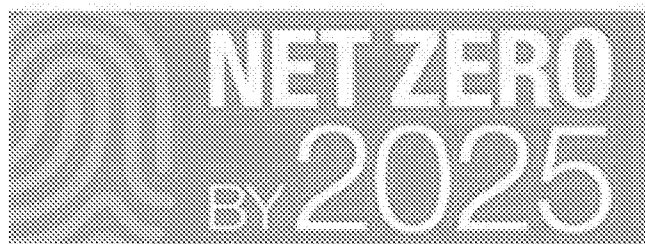

Kind regards,
Megan
