The basal area surrounding the tree

Looking up into the canopy to illustrate the high content of deadwood therein – the right centre of the picture shows an example of seed cones retained on a dead branch

Illustrating the contorted limb on the north side that is out of character with the remainder of the crown. The white lines are indicative of the extent of recommended pruning. Subject to making the final cuts adjacent to a living growth point.

The dead top and dieback in the central leader along with chlorosis and yellowing of the needles below this point.

An example of the exposed and mower damaged roots in the grass verge.
