Dear Norman

Tree Inspection

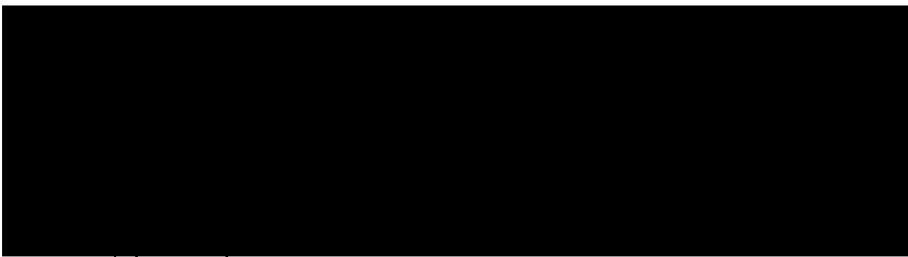

Following on from my site visit to inspect your Mature English Oak, I report on the following:

Mature Oak situated in your rear garden.

This is a structurally poor tree, due to the heart wood decay present around its buttress area. We have pruned this tree's canopy in the past, to delay the day that a decision needs to be made to take it down. This time round I am of the opinion that this tree is structurally poor. The mature Eucalyptus in the neighbouring garden which has just been felled, had similar issues. Physical damage around ground level possibly occurred when the houses were built. In time this damage has resulted in decay setting in.

My conclusion: This tree is of poor structural health. Unfortunately, it is my professional opinion that this tree is a liability to you. I strongly recommend felling it.

If you require more details they will gladly be provided. We look forward to hearing from you.
