Dear Simon

As we discussed last week, I have prepared, as requested by you, an overlay drawing PL40, upon which I have added the proposed alterations onto the elevations of the existing house. I have colour coded this, so that elements that are to be dismantled or removed are indicated in light blue colour, new elements are in red colour, light buff lines represent areas of new cladding (not representative of the colour, just easier to distinguish the graphics).

I have also added a legend at the bottom, of the same number references, as indicated in the Design and Access Statement, with numbers added to the relevant part of the elevations for cross referencing. Additional notes refers to existing retained areas of brickwork and roof and fencing.

I hope this clarifies the scope and impact of the application.

I have also added a slightly clearer image of PL31A (the proposed front perspective).

Please let me know, if I can help in any other way.

Kind regards

John Wheatley
