INTRODUCTION

My parents moved to Aldwick in 1970 and I was a frequent visitor until my mother passed away in 2010 when I inherited her house and, with my partner, I became a resident in Stanmore Gardens. I strongly object to the loss of The Ship Inn, an historic public house at the heart of Aldwick, and to the aesthetic period appearance of a building that belongs to the character of this unspoilt village.

SIGNS

With reference to the proposed changes in signage that would accompany this building being converted to a "Morrisons Convenience Store", these six large illuminated signs would be totally out of place in a traditional village setting in an "Area of Special Character". They would change the character of the building, and become an ugly eyesore and distraction for all those passing on foot or by vehicle.
