I object to the proposed signage on grounds of its unsympathetic and intrusive nature.

If your Council's designation of the area as one of special character means anything, it is apparent that the establishment of a ubiquitous Morrisons branch within it would be inappropriate. While the unfortunate changes to permitted development rights may mean that the re-use of the existing building may take place without planning consent, it should be made clear that the special character means that the proposed external advertising will not be approved.
