Dear Mr Sullivan

PLANNING APPLICATION IN RESTROSPECT

Thank you for visiting us on October 17th 2011 and for your advice.

Once again, please accept my apologies for having misunderstood the planning control for a garden shed. As we were replacing our existing garden shed which was in the same location and proximity to the fence, we had thought that planning permission was not required.

Our old garden shed was in disrepair and unusable. The new garden shed has been built for my wife who is a Parkinson's sufferer and her health is decidedly worsened whereby if left alone, she could have difficulty tackling the stairs to the main house. The garden shed has been built to enable my wife to go outside in the garden during the day. It provides comfort and safety when left alone which will hopefully enable her to retain some degree of independence.

I therefore submit our planning application in retrospect which I understand is exempt from any application fee as it is for a disabled person for the reasons set out above. I hope this is ok. I have enclosed 3 copies of the application form, site location map, hand drawing and photographs.

Please do let me know if you have any questions or any further information is required (either by email [REDACTED])

I look forward to hearing from you.

Yours sincerely

[REDACTED]
Hugh Evans
