Dear Mr Davis

I am writing to confirm that whilst a great deal of time and thought has gone into the current submitted proposals, my client has decided to withdraw the application as of todays date, to spend some short time reviewing alternative options, in consultation with his neighbours on the Estate, to alter the existing house, rather than demolishing it and building a new one.

Hopefully, if we can get some agreement with the Estate, to our revised options to alter the existing house, we will then resubmit alternative proposals in the near future.

However, in the event that Mr Greenwood cannot reach agreement with the Estate on revised proposals, he has asked me to confirm that he reserves the right to resubmit the current proposals for the new house, which would then presumably go to appeal.

You have indicated to me on the telephone, that the council would be recommending refusal of this application and so I would appreciate it if you could confirm the reasons and policies that you would refer to in the event of a rejection, if the application was not being withdrawn?

If and when we have proposals to resubmit, would you be willing to meet me to discuss them, in advance of the new application being lodged? Kind regards etc:.

Kind regards

John Wheatley
