

Heritage Statement

254 Aldwick Road was originally a farm manager's cottage and originally a two up, two down structure which has been extended over the years. The living room and dining room have open fires and exposed beams.

The decision taken to erect a partition wall was taken in good faith to improve the look of the living room. When we bought the cottage the living room was not very functional and included an extended area. We wanted to make the living room more in keeping with a cottage-style look. (See photos A).

The spare room created from the partition is extremely useful and has retained all features, including exposed beams.

I believe the partition wall has enhanced the look of the cottage without interfering with any historic features.
