Hi Anita

Comments in respect to the outstanding points;

11. I note that the driveway construction has now changed to blockwork. Please make it very clear that the upper layer of inbitex geotextile is porous and the ibitex geomembrane is impermeable – this is for the benefit of the contractor. – Note added onto drainage layout and detail updated to make it clearer.

24. No revised drawing supplied – Drawing attached. Sub-bases 250mm.

29. There are two manhole S23's on the layout plan. The one near plot 9 needs changing to a different reference to ensure no confusion in the calculations. Node S10 in calcs – where is this on the plan? Calculations show an orifice control at S26 (filter chamber) – please explain. – Drawing updated to reflect calculations. Flow control removed at S26 as it is not required.

30. More detail is required in terms of explaining how the system is designed to work. This needs to include the role of the hydrobrake, how important the silt traps are upstream of the tank in ensuring silt does not enter the tank and also the filter upstream of the hydrobrake. The importance and reasons for the channel drains in the driveways also needs to be explained.- More detail added in report.
