Dear Albert

Thank you for getting me over to take a look at your leaning Macrocarpa (Monterey cypress).

Having checked around the base of the tree and visually checked the main trunk. There are signs of movement in the root plate. The Tree has come to rest in one of the Leylandi to its west. Although the root plate has lifted, this has been gradual (over recent years). The tree spreads out towards the west over your garden. It is not significantly tall for its species and age.

Due to the size of the tree, it is possible to retain it with pruning works.

Recommended Works - Prune back the lateral westerly spread by 3.5 meters leaving the tree's final canopy spread at approximately 3.5 to 4 meters. The trees height can also be pruned down, leaving it at a final height of approximately 10 Meters.

If I can be of further help please do get in touch.

Yours sincerely,

John Bentley (NDarb)
