Heritage Statement

Wayside Cottage is a grade 2 listed property in the High Street , Angmering. I think it is listed as being 17th century but I understand there is an article in the Library that suggests the house may have originated as a farm workers cottage between 1450 - 1500.

The original part of the house, which is at 90 degrees to the road is not included in the proposed works. It was extended in the 1980's creating an L shaped house and it is this section, which runs parallel to the High Street, that requires insulation. The extension, which is stepped back by approx 200mm from the original house has a different flint design than the original and is obviously a recent addition. Also this extension has only a single story to the front elevation with a dormer window in the roof, matching the existing elevation of the original house. It also has a fairly large protruding bay window, once again matching the existing, so the impact of any holes drilled will be very small.
