Dear Ms Kersley,

re: Application BE/23/22/T

When I made the application, I forgot to mention another aspect of the damage caused by the tree. Perhaps I could mention it here, and maybe you could put this email with the application.

I was mainly concerned about the fact that the tree is pushing the boundary wall over which is next to my property, but I neglected to mention that the tree is also pushing over the wall next to the highway, causing it to lean towards the road.

This wall is further from the tree, and so is less affected, but it will no doubt continue to lean more as the years go by. The wall at this point is about 2.5m tall and is right next to the highway (there is no pavement) and so, whilst it currently presents very little danger to the public, it will present a considerable danger in future years unless action is taken.

Best regards, Peter
