All

FYI

I've forwarded this to all parishes where it runs through and to Cllr Haymes as Chairman of Yapton PC.

This still does not address the matter of the route to be taken after passing Barnham Church and in particular whether it will run along the north bank of the canal or the south bank and where it crosses into the compound. Scant consideration is given to RoW footpath users safety such as having banksman when crossing the public footpaths.

The Barnham Link cycleway reaches and ends at the Murrell Arms, not opposite the church gate _Church Lane is part of it - and there is no layby north of the Old Rectory: it's a patch of highway verge that has been run on by parking cars. It has no substructure to support the weight of HGVs.

It doesn't answer Alison's question re trans-shipment site and demonstrates the depth of the alleged consultation with the PC.

I note that working hours are until 20.00 in the evening. As Construction is seen as to take place winter 2015/2016 I take it this means illumination of the site too and traffic at that hour.

Alison: your comments asap please.

Regards

DerekW

Dear Alison, Derek and Nick,

Please find attached an amended and updated CTMP that the agents have compiled mainly in order to avoid having to discharge the CMP condition recommended by Allison.

Please let me have your comments when you can.

Dear All,

In response to Dereks e-mail below, I checked the website documents again and there is no definitive access route on any plans through Barnham Court, so Nick was unsure which way round the HGVs would travel and at what point they enter the construction site, i.e do they intend in travelling right to the end of the right of way or as the plans indicate stay within the applicants site (bounded by red on the plans)

I received a letter from a local resident, Captain Peter Williams this also appears to have been copied to the Chief planning officer at Arun, the letter and the letters attached from BNRG Renewables to local residents explain that HGV's are not going to be used for the majority of the journeys down Church Lane but instead use small transportation vehicles and use an unknown site to distribute the construction materials.

This information is not on the website to date and I have not seen anything to indicate this is part of the construction management plan. I would have thought this is a much safer and less intrusive way of trying to mitigate any damage or noise, however as I can only comment on the plans I have seen they show that a traffic management system has been put forward and swept paths show that the HGVs can use the route....

However if there is an alternative such as smaller vehicles this would in my view be a much better option on all levels including highway safety. I have asked for further swept path diagrams for the access route into church lane due to the frequency of parked cars in this vicinity. This could also cause problems further along this route, i.e residents vehicles.

Therefore I would like to know why residents have these letters with this information, where this idea has come from, where it is at now, where would the transition place be located to transfer items to be delivered to the site into smaller loads? Will this be re-sent as part of the CMP?

Kind regards
Alison

Nick FYI

I am sure somebody like, Alison has a hard copy
Of the applications and traffic management document. Unfortunately I think you are a bit confused by the inability to access the maps on Arun's website. Typical of them.

Do access via Alison and have a re-look at your notes.
