Good morning Richard,

Please find attached for your review the amended Barnham Court drawings to satisfy the EA's flooding concerns:

- Typical Panel Elevations
- Layout Plan
- Landscape Mitigation Plan

Could you please advise whether these changes would require the proposal to go back to consultation and if so, do you foresee any issues that may arise with other Consultees?

Many thanks,

Andrew,

Thank you for the email.

The EA have stated they would not object to the proposal but would still require a condition regarding flood plain storage (as stated before).

If you could send the drawing and plan through showing the new arrangement then we can assess if we need to re-consult on the amendments.

Regards,

Richard,

Further to our telephone conversation on Tuesday, the applicant has confirmed that it is possible to allow the trailing edge to be brought up to 1.3m with the top height remaining at 2.5m. This involves a change in the number of panels per array and a slight change in the angle of the panels.

'Instead of 4 (@300) in landscape we will have to do 3 in landscape at 23.50 degrees, with 1.3m at the trailing edge and 2.5m at the leading edge.'

Can you confirm that EA would be happy to retract their objection if these changes were made? Do you think it would cause any issues in other areas such as Landscape?

Thanks in advance,
