

In addition to the plans I have provided I also enclose three pictures that demonstrate the obscurity that being on the top floor provides.

May I draw your attention to the lower half of both windows and french doors.

The parapet that partially blocks views to the remaining framework gives a good level of cover, thus making a large portion of the doors and windows hidden from public view.

