Good afternoon Simon ,

I have just seen the last comment about the boundary wall to my property at no 69 , well this has been put up over 25 years ago as I am led to believe and previously the boundary wall was the old wall ,this was extended out to give access to the side when they put the extension on ,im not sure if a deed of variation was done at the time ,if not it may need to return to the original boundary (to the old wall which is in line with my rear garden wall in a straight line, off course im hoping common sense will still prevail and this planning application will get rejected as there is a lot of bad feeling in the road about this !

Regards
