Dear Simon

Why the massive delay, this application is already late and I don't understand why Planning are not be proactive with this application or giving it immediate attention given that you have all the facts and, given the nature and condition of the building and all the emails and reports on its condition.

Clearly Planning are happy to carry the can should anything occur as clearly questions will be asked why. As stated many times we feel as Structural Engineers that Arun planning should be making this application a priority It is not often that we get concerned about a buildings overall stability, but this is one of them and I would not want any incidents on my watch. There is only so much that can be done and Planning have to play their part otherwise what's the point. I also assume that this has not been reported to upper management as I have not had anything from your managers or head of planning.
