Dear Susan Loveday

Further to my visit to inspect your two large Austrian Pines. I am pleased to report on the following.

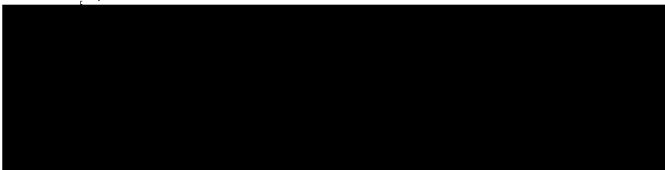

Looking around the base of the two trees, it is evident that there has been little disturbance to this area since the garages were built. The two trees look to be in good health with no visual signs of decay or weakness on the main stem/trunks.

One tree has become more dominant than the other. This does not concern me. Both canopies are visually green and there is no major die back evident. My only observation which I feel does need addressing, is the size of the two trees in relation to the built up area which they occupy.

Although I can not fault the trees structurally I will however recommend that the two trees should subject to a climbing inspection and in conjunction with this inspection the trees canopies are thinned out by no more than 15%. This will lightly reduce the wind resistance.

Cost to carry out the minimal pruning and climbing inspection - £360.00

All arisings will be removed leaving the area tidy upon completion.
For your protection all our work is covered by £10 million third party and Public Liberty Insurance. If you require more details they will gladly be provided. We look forward to hearing from you.
