Dear Nick,

Thank you for this -- this revised site plan is what I was after.

I am sorry for the mistake that was made with the plans. However, having now looked into this, I can see that Proposed Plan drawing ADS-001P Rev A was initially submitted to us on the Planning Portal (dated 11/10/18). This showed 6 flats with none in the roof. My admin officer identified some issues with this drawing. She also requested an existing plan/elevation drawing. You then submitted on 29/10/18, the existing plan/elevation drawing alongside a revised proposed plan ref ADS-001P Rev C. It was these two plans received on 29/10/18 that then went forward to become the application plans. However, that second proposed plan (ADS-001P Rev C) actually showed 8 flats with two in the roof. Therefore, I do not consider that we made any mistakes in the registration of the application. I also note that the submitted application form stated a total of 8 new flats.

I confirm that we have now gone back to drawing ADS-001P Rev A and have also amended the development description to state 6 new flats.

Kind Regards

Hi Simon

Further to our conversation please find attached amended parking and bin store site plan.

As discussed I agree the section drawing is no longer required as originally requested as the most recent application has reduced accommodation that does not provide for a 2nd floor. It is obviously disappointing to hear that the wrong plan drawings were printed for your information that prompted this request.

Please provide by return your acceptance of all recently supplied documents,

Many thanks

Nick
