Morning Ana,

Sorry for the slow reply I have been on annual leave for the last week.

I have had a look at the bat survey for this site and I am satisfied that bats are not using the barns so no further work is required here. A condition can be used to ensure the lighting scheme is sensitive to bats and avoid any unnecessary artificial light spill through the use of directional light sources and shielding.

As they are doing a restoration of the barn it is unlikely that GCN would be affected by the works, however we do require that a precautionary approach is undertaken. As a precaution and to ensure GCN habitat is retained the following precautionary measures must be undertaken;

- An ecological watching brief should be put together for the vegetation removal. Though this can only be done once the reptile mitigation has taken place.
- If a GCN is found all works must stop immediately and Natural England consulted.
- Rubbish / spoil should not be left onsite in suitable GCN habitat areas

Finally as always a condition for nesting birds should be used - Any works to the trees or vegetation clearance on the site should only be undertaken outside of the bird breeding season which takes place between 1st March – 1st October. If works are required within this time an ecologist will need to check the site before any works take place (with 24 hours of any work).

Many Thanks

Liz

Hi Anita,

Here is the more recent Bat Report. Although I see that previously the last 2009 report referred to 'Other Protected species' too. This concluded that there were no others. The present updated report seems to deal only with Bats and therefore seems not to update the 'Other'.
