Hello Mrs Johnson,

I'm terribly sorry but my brain is a bit scrambled and I can't pick up what part of the existing proposal isn't shown as required. Is it the clouded area of the attached that's the problematic detail? It's a UPVC structure so could it be that the survey CAD information is too heavy to be picked up as glazing on the floor plan? The second attachment shows a crop of that part of the plans, scaled at A3, which shows the glazing details in that area. Is it a case of reducing the line weights on the main plan to make it clearer or am I way off!?

Apologies again for the confusion, this is the last thing you probably want to be dealing with.

Let me know at your convenience and I'll do what I can to amend.

Thank you

Tom
