Mr Wood: Thank you. I can see the drawing you refer to (dated 11 April, isn't it?). In what sense is it 'approved'? I would still suggest that the latest Ground floor plan, and the Street Scene in Sea Drive, are misleading in that they do not show either the ground floor parking places (in the real street scene they would have cars parked on them) or the entrance to the underground car park. – Ed Miller

Yes they are still included and can be seen on Proposed Block Plan Dwg.no. 046/PL003 REV F Dated Apr 17 which is one of the approved plans.

Best regards,

Mr Wood: Neither the latest Ground floor Plans nor the Street Scene, Sea Drive, both recently submitted, show any parking places fronting onto Sea Drive. But the covering minute from the architects, covering the revised plans (posted 29 June) refers to 12 parking places in all. The plan for the underground car park shows spaces numbered 3 to 12: are spaces 1 and 2 still intended to be on the ground floor, fronting Sea Drive? If so, why are they not shown on the latest plan and street scene? Isn't the absence of these prominent features very misleading for Members of the Development Control Committee when they come to consider the application. Or is there something I have misunderstood? - Ed Miller (Secretary, Ferring Conservation group)
