Dear Head of Planning at Arun District Council

Having read the above application we will be making a formal objection online in the appropriate manner.

However we are so concerned about the process taken so far we have the following queries:-

Why was the condition for fixed, un-openable obscure glass windows applied in the first place?

Why was it left to us to notify your department that the condition was not adhered to.?

If conditions are ignored does the building still have planning approval ?

Is it common practice to assist applicants to amend conditions applied after the building has been completed?

The above amendment requires the applicant to inform the Planning Department when they intend to open the windows - is this requirement setting a precedent? if not, how many times has this been done?

If this amendment is approved how will it be managed ?

Will the neighbours be informed of dates windows are to be opened and closed?

Where will the register of opening dates be kept? and how many years will they be kept for?

Who will we contact if windows are opened more than four times ?

The original condition was not adhered to so what happens if this amendment isn't ?

Why doesn't the Planning dept. just insist that the original planning condition is honoured?

All of the above questions lead us to doubt the integrity of the Planning Dept as the evidence appears to be that if you ignore planning rules you will be helped to circumnavigate them, and no matter what we do or say can make any difference at all.

We look forward to your response

Regards

Lynda and Ken Chalk.
