Hi Daniel. The height is 750 mm rather than 600 from the top of the sea wall. I think it is noted on the drawing. Regards. Ivon

Ivon,

Following our conversation of last week please find response from our Engineer.
Can you confirm height? If it is as described below please provide correct plans.

“Following an inspection of the site last week I can confirm that the applicant has, in principle, constructed the asset in accordance with the approved plans. However, I am led to believe that the timber planking has been placed higher than the stated “600mm above the seawall”. Unfortunately, I didn’t have a tape measure to hand but I estimate the timber wall to be approximately 150mm higher than that stated in the approved drawing. From a Coast Protection standpoint this is not something that will adversely effect the structure and I can therefore confirm it is to the satisfaction of our department.

Provided the additional height is not a problem for the planning department I can therefore recommended that this condition be discharged.”
