Dear Simon

With regard to:

FP/175/17/L – The Whyke House, 47 Felpham Way – LBC to add secondary glazing to 10 windows.

Generally, I'd say no to this, as secondary double glazing is as intrusive visually as double-glazing. That is to say there are two layers of reflectivity which inevitably has an adverse effect on the appearance of the property as a whole. In this case, secondary glazing would also encroach on the historic timber window reveals (and possibly shutters – although they have not photographed all windows). In addition to this, the submitted photographs (towards the end of the application), show secondary glazing already in situ. This appears to be unauthorised, and should be removed.

Regards

Clare
