Janice

Thank you so much for your reply.
There is only one water tank proposed and it should be between 1-1.2m in height.
Drawing error noted and will be amended.

Kind regards

Dear Leeza,

The alterations to the rear regarding the high level windows and a door in lieu of window on the east side can be accepted as a non-material amendment. Is there only one water tank, when scaled from the submitted plan this appears to be under 1m in height. Can you confirm this.

I note that the plan showing west elevation should read east elevation.

Dear Mrs Chapman

We gained planning permission for improvements to Felpham Sailing Club a year ago and are now intending to progress the works.

A couple of minor alterations are required to enhance the facilities. These alterations are all to the rear of the existing building with the introduction of two high level obscure glazed windows to the North elevations, a door to replace a window in the East elevation and the need to replace none-compliant water tanks with new on the flat roof.

I attach a drawing illustrating the permitted scheme and the proposed minor alterations.

Could you advise if these changes could be approved under an application for a non-material amendment?

Your assistance would be really appreciated.

Kind regards

Leeza
