Good morning Pauline,

Thank you for your forms.

Unfortunately the Form 6 Commencement Notice can not be accepted as there is no commencement date entered.

Please resubmit with a commencement date. This must be one clear working day from submitting the form. If you are not quite ready, please resubmit when you have a commencement date.

Kind regards,
Julie

We were awaiting 'in use proof' to be able to deduct from the K/17/22/PL application. You can submit the forms for that application too, Form 2 and Form 9 and then a new Liability Notice will be sent for that too and result in a zero Liability Notice to be sent.

I'm finishing now and on leave tomorrow and Friday. I will be back in the office Monday morning and will process any forms received then.

Thanks,
Julie.

Hi Julie

Could you please tell me in this case: "Therefore, you can deduct the existing floor space from the proposed and CIL will just be payable on the floor area created from the extensions", based on the current application K/17/22/PL what is the CIL charge?

As I mentioned before: "we are now in a situation where the most recent application K/17/22/PL is larger than the scheme the client wants to carry out. We are nervous about the greater CIL than we need to.

My client is going to review the self build relief for a residential extension.

I am going to send you forms: 2 Assumption of Liability and 9 Residential relief I just want to be sure that I am referencing the correct planning application.

Kind regards,

Paulina Kosciak

Hello,

I was just trying to have a look at the plans. The existing plans on the 2020 application do not show it as 2 flats and no where is states they are 2 dwellings. I think that is probably why a CIL record was created or Liability Notice sent.

Conversion from 2 into 1 results in a CIL charge if you are extending. Regardless of the size of the extension. Therefore, you can deduct the existing floor space from the proposed and CIL will just be payable on the floor area created from the extensions.

You would then apply for self build relief for residential extension relief and no CIL is payable. Its then up to you if you then commence the 2022 application, however, you must remember not to commence any works under that application that differ from the 2020 application.

We have reason to believe from building control records that the works have commenced? I would complete form 2 Assumption of Liability and form 9 Residential Extension relief and return asap.

I hope this helps,
Julie

Hi Julie,

I hope you are well.

We are trying to find the best path of the current project:-

K/17/22/PL

This is the current application that we have been discussing. For your reference, I also attach the documentation to show that the property is two used dwellings.

The file is too large so please download via wetransfer <https://we.tl/t-xvWNATXn3y>

Further to this, however:-

K/40/20/HH

This planning application is still live for the conversion of two dwellings into one house.

There was no CIL liable for this development because it was under 100 sqm because it was combined together with a previous application K/27/17/HH which had no CIL applied.

We are now in a situation where the most recent application K/17/22/PL is larger than the scheme the client wants to carry out. It, therefore, makes sense to us that we work under planning K/40/20/HH, where the conditions have also been discharged already.

We would then look to submit an application for the conversion of the loft if the client wishes to proceed with this part of the project once they feel the budget is under control. Which would be under 100 sqm. So therefore no CIL would be payable. Or we could at that point submit a liability notice under the current application K/17/22/PL but would you consider deducting the previous application allowance from the calculation?

We are happy to have a discussion

Lucinda & Paulina

Hello,

This is just a friendly reminder that we must receive a completed Form 6 Commencement Notice before commencing any works. Failure to do this will result in surcharges being added and possible loss of relief.

Please also remember that we must receive a completed Form 2 Assumption of Liability form.

Kind regards,
Julie
