Thank you for consulting us on this application. We have looked at the documents available on your website.

The building which the applicant wishes to demolish is described as an "outbuilding". However the photographs supplied with the application show a substantial building which appears to have been built for another use - possibly residential?

The Design and Access Statement dates the building to the mid-19th century. We would welcome more information on its history and development, and also information about how it relates to the New Inn.

The photographs supplied are difficult to piece together - they show only details and are not related to the location plan. Could the applicant supply photographs of the building's main elevations, so we can get a better idea of what it actually looks like, and better estimate the role it plays within the New Inn complex?

Finally, it is not true to say that the building is not listed. It is, by virtue of being within the curtilage of the Grade II-listed New Inn.

We look forward to receiving this additional information.
