Anita,

I'm writing to express my dismay at the proposals for the businesses to enter Tesco in Littlehampton. The high street is already dying due to the numerous supermarkets etc opening around the outskirts of the town and these proposed businesses would further disrupt existing businesses in the high street.

I have no particular loyalty to any businesses in Littlehampton but I do object to the disproportionate amount of power yielded by Tesco and other large stores. Not only do Tesco have a lions share of the British shoppers disposable income, they pay minimum wage to employees and have been proven to fiddle their taxes.

If you can provide me with a reasonable explanation as to why Tesco deserve a larger slice of a pie than what they already have I would be sated but until that point, please do not let Tesco dilute my town any more than they already have.

Kind regards

Russ Poore
