The proposed materials are considered to be acceptable. However, I do have some concerned with the proposed lighting. It does appear to be very modern in design and such that it would not necessarily reflect the character of the building. I wonder if a more discrete system been considered?

Further, it is not clear if all of the lights will be located along one short stretch of the new walling, or at various points of the wall. As a consequence, can the location of the lights be confirmed?
