Dear Mrs Johnson,

The revised description describes all the changes shown. If the item 'room in roof' refers to the rear dormer over the existing house, the intent is that the rear dormer will be carried out as permitted development. If the description needs to contain the permitted development areas, then the amended description is correct. If the permitted development elements are not included in the description there are no other areas of room in roof.

If you need to discuss this further, please call.

Kind regards,

Julian
