Hi Sian

thanks,

I can confirm that the proposed ground floor level will be the same height as the existing house. We will not be lowering any floor levels.

Is that ok?

thanks

Paul

Dear Mr Reed,

Apologies for the slow reply I was unable to access my emails yesterday due to an error with outlook. In regards to the flood risk assessment although you asked for a call I think it would be easier to explain via email. As the extension is small and mainly in the roof and you have provided a flood map all I need is a small statement from yourself it can be via email or a word document stating that you will not be lowering the floor levels, they will be kept in line with the existing house or made higher ect whichever is relevant and that the applicant will take into consideration any flood defences necessary. It can just be a line or 2 that will be sufficient.

Everything else is fine with the application. Again apologies for my slow reply.

Kind regards

Sian Eggington
