Dear Mr Denton,

The site is within the coastal frontage managed by the Environment Agency (under flood defence powers). I have no objection on Engineering grounds; however, I understand that the EA has been consulted on this application.

Whilst I would not want to pre-judge the Agency's views, I do not think that there will be an operational issue; however, there may be some interference with the major scheme that it proposed for an August/September start. I doubt whether a picket fence is going to be a showstopper and expect the EA to liaise with the applicant in this respect.

WRT land ownership; I think the applicant may have a different view to that agreed between myself and the Crown Estate (Arun is a lease holder of the Crown's Foreshore). Whilst it would be normal for the boundary (HWM) to be established on a day to day basis (with the tide and current induced movement of sand/shingle), the sudden intervention of the scheme of the early 1990s fixed the effective HWM boundary. We have established where HWM effectively was on the day the scheme started – this is shown in green above. This green line is seaward of the 'red line' of the application and so there is not an issue in this respect.

Regards,

Roger Spencer
