Dear Mr Davis,

It is very much worth pointing out that the spirit of the Permitted Development guidelines promises to protect 'the community, residents, environment and infrastructure from abuse'. How in any way is this the case in this instance? The only beneficiary is the owner of both greenhouse and labour company. Pursuant to this, the notion of Permitted Development should be rendered void as the workers housed within the caravans are not to be used at the site, but bused - out to work elsewhere (About which, I am informed, that you are aware!) . The whole application should therefore be rejected at this stage without hesitation, as there should not exist a tenure to extend.

I would therefore request a meeting/visit to explain further, should it be necessary.
