Dear David,

Our Group Head of Planning will be meeting our Engineers next week to discuss those applications where comments have been provided and we have re-consulted Engineers. These will then be prioritised in date order. It is understood that the consultation backlog has been dealt with and so Engineers can now look at more recent consultations and re-consultations.

That is the only news I have for now.

Kind Regards

Good morning Simon ,

Further to my email dated last Thursday which we still have not had a reply to can I please request an update .

Not only is there huge financial implication here there is the stress and mental health problems this delay is causing .

We await your response .

Regards

David

Dear David,

Thanks for your email.

We issued a re-consult to Engineers on 11/08/22. Engineers are currently tasked with dealing with the backlog of outstanding first time consultation requests. My understanding is that they have nearly achieved this and will soon be able to look at those where officers have reconsulted them. Our Group Head of Planning is meeting engineers next week to discuss the priority of those that have had reconsults. I will know more after then as to how long it will be for you to get a response.

Kind Regards
