dear mr sullivan

thank you for your response, whilst i respect your position the words used were not so much an opinion as a claim made against us. as the claim was made in the belief that we were proposing to change the bungalow into a house, which of course we are not, i dont understand why it was listed as an objection when it has no bearing on what we have actually applied for.

We respect peoples right to object, but if i were to call someone a lying cheat and published it or posted it on a public forum i would have to be able to prove my claim or be subject to the libel laws of this land.thank you.

regards, mr kl drew.
