i am yet another horrified Walberton village resident having lived in the old part of the village for almost 20 years. I moved here from London as I thought it was a little bit of the England that I knew as a child. Peaceful and unspoilt.

If you build 600 new houses up there in Tuppens Field you will cause pandemonium in so many ways. The traffic at the Fontwell roundabout is getting worse each day. At peak time one has to wait several minutes, and it becomes dangerous as everyone is in a rush. You will also de stabilise the existing houses in the area. Why can't you build more houses in the areas around Bognor and Littlehampton which have already been ruined by new development? And keep little England as it always was.
