

An architectural elevation drawing of a three-story residential building. The house features a complex roof with multiple gables, all covered in red shingles. The main body of the house is finished with white horizontal siding, while the ground floor and a prominent corner section are clad in red brick. The white-siding section has two rows of double-hung windows, each with a small decorative pediment above it. The brick section features three large, vertically-oriented double-hung windows. The house is set against a light blue sky with stylized white clouds and sits on a green lawn.
