Dear Simon,

For your information I have sent these old images of Main Road and Bonhams House to the Parish Council to see if they can bring any pressure on Arun planning to make it a condition that Seawards use metal fencing along the frontage and around the green areas to the right as you enter their housing estate.

If all else fails, the entrance would then at least be in keeping with the existing historic entrance to the village.

I know I have sent you an email about this before, but I thought you might be interested in this.

These people must have been the groom, maid and gardeners.

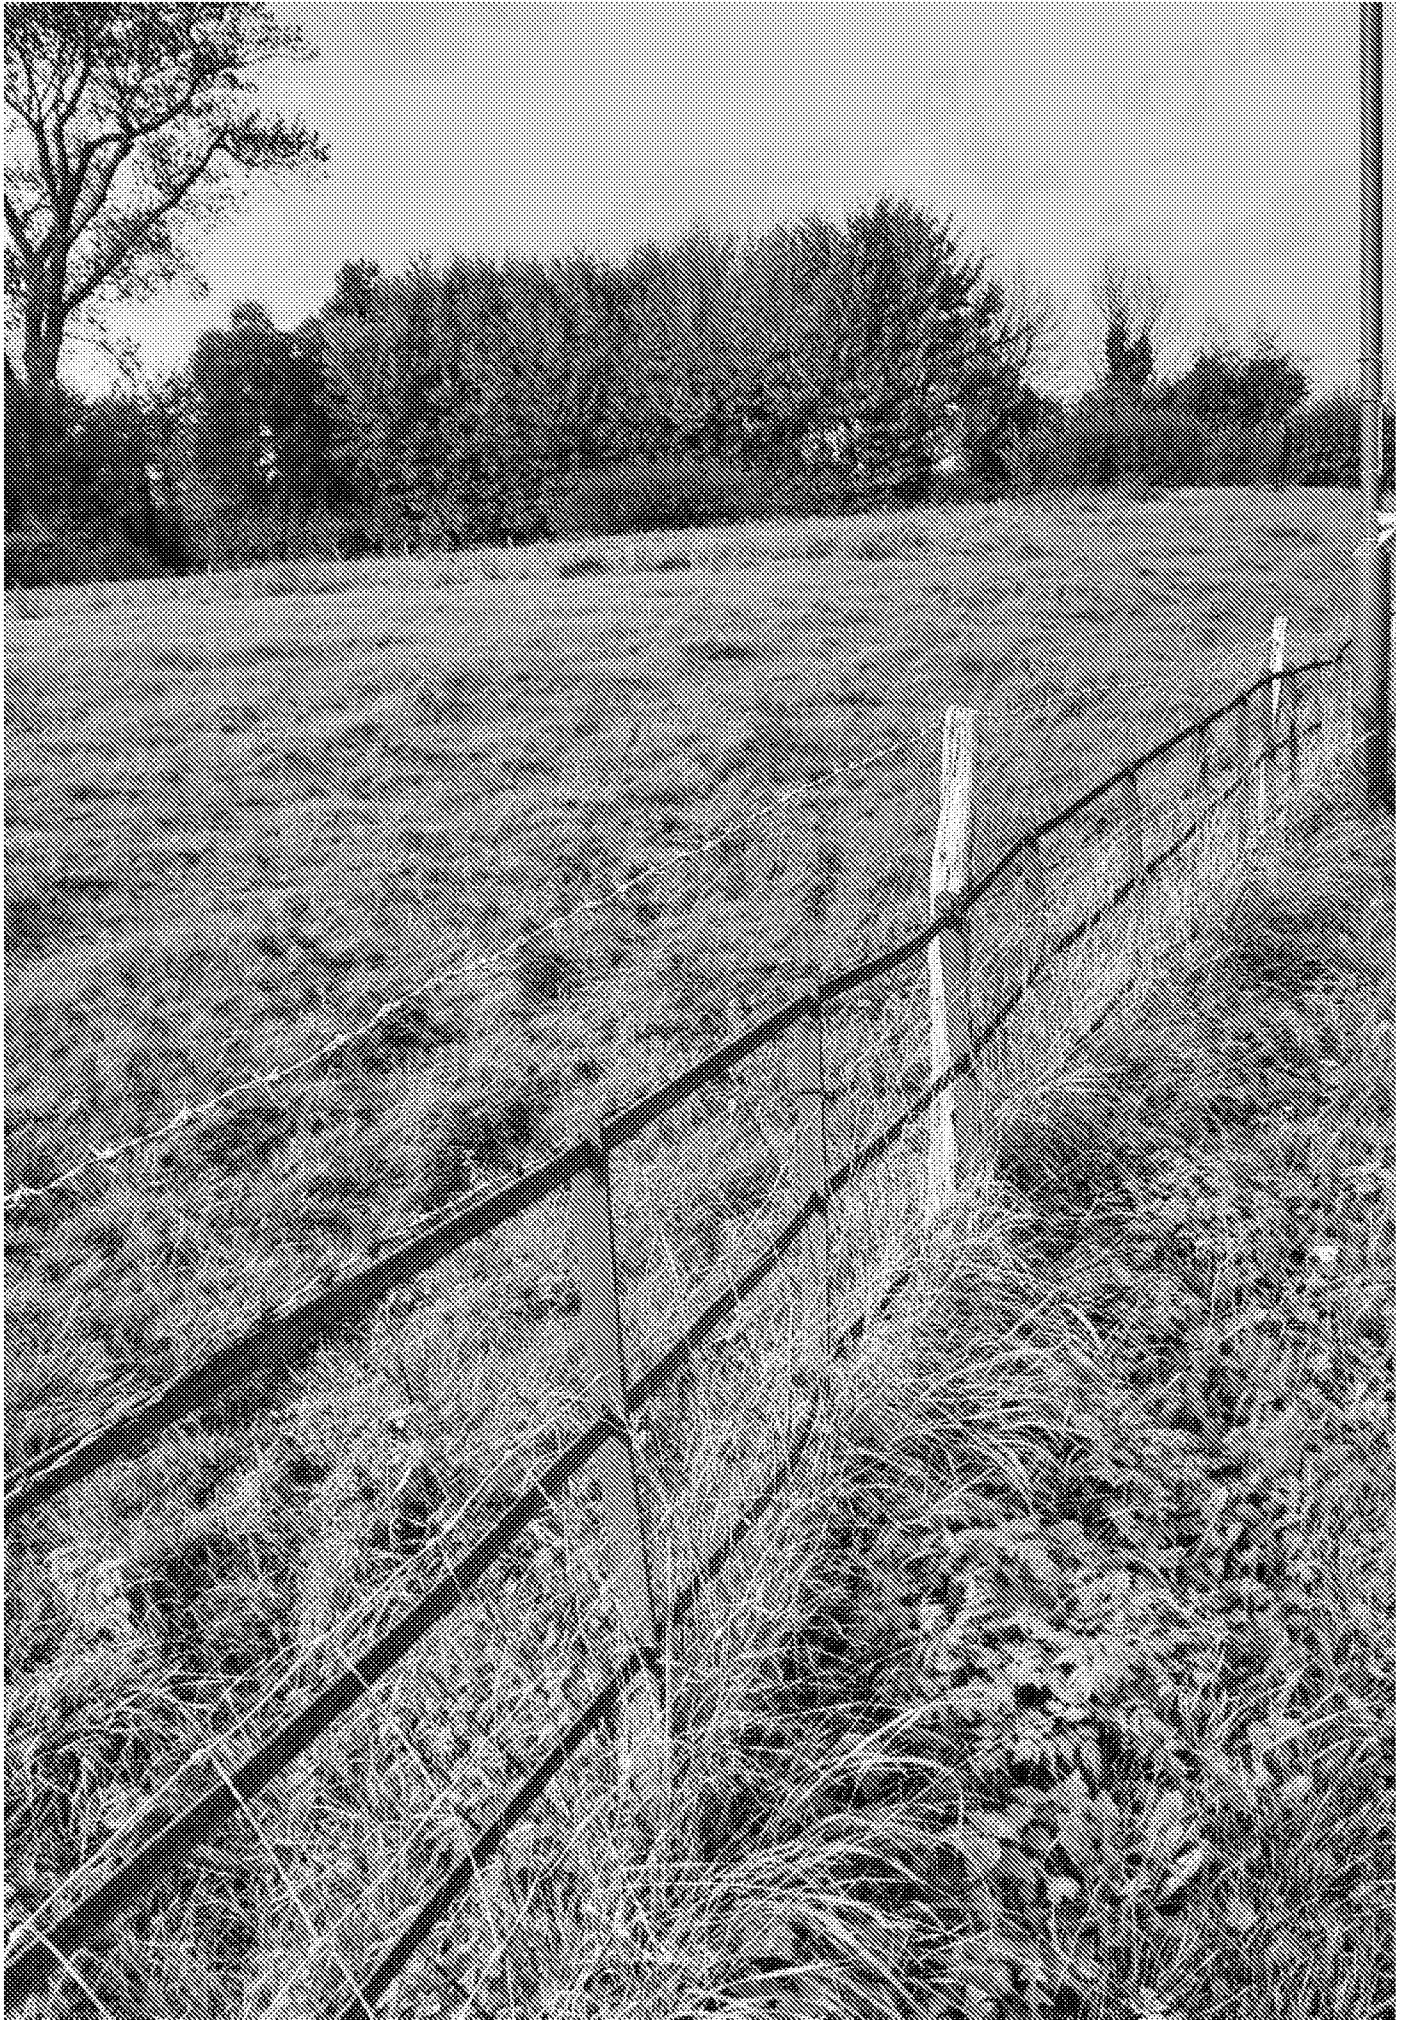

Most of the original wrought iron fencing still exists and could easily be renovated. Clearly it needs protecting now.

Please note the Flood warning which is nearly always somewhere along this road.

I cannot see how to add images to the planning portal, but if possible, I think this is very relevant to the permissions. I also think that Aruns historic buildings should have a copy of this, but not sure of the best person to send it to. Please could you forward it to them, or let me know.

Regards,

Angela
